Are We a Vulnerable Nation?

For generations we have quietly patted ourselves on the back and declared to ourselves, "We are a self-supporting nation, why should we fear siege?" Yet in a day the face of the whole world changed; and we are confronted with possibilities and probabilities never before dreamed of. Separated by three thousand miles, we are being deprived of one commodity after another which we ourselves have been unable to produce. In a sense, we begin to feel the pressure of blockade. The very paper on which this is printed has advanced 100% because we do not produce necessary raw materials. But that is quite a side issue: Cleveland Moffett has written a book entitled THE CONQUEST of AMERICA. He assumes the role of correspondent for the London Times, and the year is 1921 A.D. It is not a story book, yet it is the romance of invasion. It begins with the landing of troops on Long Island by the German navy — Germany is used as the invader because her preparedness has been demonstrated as the most complete in the history of the world. From the Eastern end of Long Island, through Brooklyn and New York to Washington and Pittsburgh on the West and Boston on the East, the triumphant Teutons march, preceded by a deadly desolation of shot, shell, gas and liquid fire. Everywhere along the path of the destroyers prominent Americans take part in the defense — many of your town may be mentioned. The book has been submitted to the criticism of and has received the approval of officials high in the Army and Navy. The important section devoted to the war in the air has had similar attention from tacticians and experts. Of course you readily can see the selling qualities, particularly when you realize that it is a well illustrated book. It is a book on preparedness, but it is much more. It gives an idea of the tragedy of devastation that may easily accrue to us if we fail to heed the warnings. Cleveland Moffett is a genuine patriot. His book rings true in every syllable.

"REVIEW COPIES" AND THE TRADE.

CONSIDERABLE interest has been aroused throughout the trade by the successive communications to the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY on the subject of the sale of review copies of books by book reviewers. All three of the interested parties having now been heard from—Mr. Fifield representing the booksellers, the Macmillan Company the book publishers, and Mr. Goodwin of Philadelphia the reviewers—it may not be amiss to attempt some summary of the case.

In the first place, what service does the book reviewer perform in book-trade economy and for whom does he perform it? Is he a "dead beat," a sort of poor relation of the trade, a non-producer battenning upon publishers and booksellers, or is he an essential or valuable link in the process of book distribution? The answer to the question is furnished by a collection of the book advertisements of such journals as the New Republic, the Nation, Scribner's, and the Book Review, or, in fact, any other medium carrying advertising of books already published. Fully one-half of the titles will be found to be followed by one or more literary quotations from reviews. For instance, a recent full-page advertisement in the New Republic of Frederick Scott Oliver's "Ordeal by Battle" (The Macmillan Company) employed eight quotations from reviews of that book.

That the publishers value this quotation material is evinced by the fact that they search for it assiduously, even enlisting the services of clipping bureaus to keep track of reviews appearing the country over. It is an axiom of the trade that a favorable notice or a complimentary review means sales, particularly if appearing in an influential medium. The review may often furnish the selling slogan for the book, while even a candid and unabashed "slam" may frequently contribute, or be made to contribute, to sales.

In other words, the reviewer has a definite and valued place in the selling of books, and if the value of his services is or has been lowered, the publisher, says the reviewer, is at least partly to blame for this derogation. The book reviewer's work supplements the publisher's advertisements in securing publicity for the book reviewed (if indeed it be not rather said that the advertisement supplements his work). The reviewer is supposed to act, and in the majority of cases—all belief to the contrary notwithstanding—does act, as an unprejudiced appraiser. How skilful the appraisal depends very largely on the amount the reviewing periodical pays for its reviewing service.

The reviewing periodicals are seldom financially able to pay the best reviewers what they are really worth, and by long custom of the craft the latter have taken partial recompense in the review copies of the books being reviewed. The reviewer claims that the publisher of the book reviewed is getting a definite advertising return, for which generally he can well afford to pay. To see that the reviewer has for his own purposes the copy of the book reviewed seems to him no more than natural justice; and whether the reviewer chooses to keep the book himself or to sell it for what he can get for it seems to him his own affair.

Of course, the ranks of book reviewing contain their share of people seeking something for nothing. Several of the publishing houses have of recent years exchanged confidential black lists of reviewing "dead beats" and fake review periodicals. Every publishing house should also keep careful watch to see that books actually reach the person for whom they are intended. But, even if review copies all get into proper hands, from whose reviews the publisher is reasonably certain of getting value received, what can be done to safe-guard the trade against price disturbance? The Macmillan Company is one of two or three publishers who seek to prevent the return of review copies into the regular trade by so stamping the books as to render resale of them difficult or impossible. In championing this policy the Macmillan Company in its recent letter to the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY said: "As a result of the somewhat extensive inquiry which we made some time ago, we have come to the conclusion that the sale of books sent out for review is responsible in a great measure for price cutting, and we think that if we could do away with this kind of sale altogether we could thereby eliminate price cutting in the book trade to a considerable degree." While it is true that purchase of review copies of books at cut prices is an inducement to further price cutting there is fair question whether the sale of review copies has had any great influence on the price maintenance situation, for the entire review distribution of any one book seldom extends to 125 copies, these going to as many reviewers scattered all over the country from Boston to Los Angeles. Indeed the manager of the book department of a department store which has been most notorious for its book price-cutting assures us that this department store never buys review copies.

Three possible ways of handling the sale of review copies suggest themselves. There is the one already in use with certain publishers, the drastic method of defacing the books with the purpose of rendering them unsaleable.

The second is by extending to other journals, especially the larger ones which receive a generous share of all the books published, the system which the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY follows of not selling books received by it for entry in the Weekly Record or for general editorial purposes. In the case of books sent to outside reviewers for notice, however, we have not found it practicable to enforce the rule against re-sale.

The third solution, a solution which will also meet the retailer's objection that he loses sales through the sale of review copies, is that already adopted by G. P. Putnam's Sons retail store in New York, namely, themselves to buy any review copies of books offered for sale, thus securing the additional turn-over, if any, on the sale. Many retail booksellers buy review copies of books, paying for them, of course, less than they pay for the same books at wholesale. Instead of counting this saving as so much additional profit for themselves, it has been the custom, in nine cases out of ten at least, to give away or divide that profit with their retail customers. Let the bookseller buy them in and sell them, not at cut prices—unless, of course, they have become damaged in handling—but at the full retail price.

Certainly with this solution the bookseller and the reviewer can find no fault, while the publisher, although he may lose the sale of a few scattered copies, may be reasonably sure that he escapes any possible demoralization of prices which the sale of review copies at cut prices invites.

FRANK HOWARD DODD—A MEMORY.

From the April Bookman.

THERE are many who will cherish the memory of Frank Howard Dodd, and could a memory be happier? It is a memory of continual buoyancy, of a man young at threescore and eleven years, of a life to the last in its full vigour and powers, of a serene happiness in the work done in the past, and a resolute building for the achievement of the future. Almost to the end he was planning for new things. For one there was to be another edition of the New International Encyclopedia. That, he whimsically suggested, was to be the cap to his life's work. But would it have been? The writer doubts. Rather there would have been fresh ideas to be given form, new enterprises to be launched. So much of his happiness was in the work itself. Seventeen years the writer knew him, and from the day of the first meeting until the last, a few short weeks before his death, he can recall no change. The fire was always there. At seventy-one his ardour was as keen as it had been when as a young man of seventeen, he had come from Bloomfield, New Jersey, to embark in his father's publishing business, and incidentally to watch from the windows of the old structure at 506 Broadway, the famous march of the Seventh Regiment down to the Battery to entrain for Baltimore. In the span of intervening years he had seen much. J. C. Derby pointed to his fifty years among books, authors, and publishers. Mr. Dodd had seen his fifty-five years. There were other activities. The city that he had first known as a vast, unwieldy country town, the city with which he was always so closely identified, grew into a world metropolis. An avenue in whose future he believed, and for which he fought, was, in the last ten years of his life, transformed from a somnolent old thoroughfare, given over mainly to antique shops, into one of the city's throbbing arteries.

Mr. Dodd was born in Bloomfield, New Jersey, April twelfth, 1844. Five years before, in 1839, his father, M. W. Dodd, himself born in Bloomfield in 1813, a graduate of Princeton with the class of 1837, and later a student at the Princeton Theological Seminary, had laid the foundations of what was to be the house of Dodd, Mead and Company, when he embarked in business as a publisher of theological books at Brick Church Chapel, City Hall Square. Mr. Frank Dodd's mother was Rachel Hoe, a sister of Robert Hoe of R. Hoe and Company, and Mr. Dodd was always closely associated with his uncle until the latter's death. Of the American publishing houses that have survived, that founded by M. W. Dodd was one of the pioneers. The Harpers dated back to 1817. 1825 marked the foundation of the house of D. Appleton and Company. In 1836 the present firm of G. P. Putnam's Sons was established in a shop in Nassau street. In 1840 Mr. Charles Scribner began his business in the same building that was occupied by Mr. Dodd. The years about 1840 marked the passing of the old Knickerbocker life with its quaint customs and its tone of land-holding aristocracy. Among M. W. Dodd's early publications were the works of Charlotte Elizabeth, Cruden's "Concordance of The Bible," Dr. Spencer's "Pastor Sketches," and the sermons of Dr. Spring, then and for many years after pastor of Brick Church. These were among the best selling books of their day. About this time Mr. Scribner was publishing the works of J. T. Headley, "Ik Marvel," and N. P. Willis. In an address written to be delivered at the dinner of the Booksellers' Association at the Aldine Club of New York in June, 1905, Mr. Frank H. Dodd gave a picture of his early recollections of the New York publishing world. He had then been a bookseller and publisher as man and boy for more than forty years. He recalled that in his youth the May anniversaries of the religious societies were a great event in New York City and the strangers who flocked to town to attend them used to register their addresses in his father's store. The New York which Mr. Dodd knew as a very small boy was substantially the New York which Mr. Hamilton W. Mabie described in an article in The Bookman of last month as being the city which confronted Bayard Taylor when he came to it to try his fortune in 1848. The old town of Irving had become a middle sized city of which N. P. Willis was probably the most conspicuous literary light. Miss Lynch, who afterwards became Mrs. Botta, kept open house to talent of all sorts, and in her pleasant salon met the lesser lights of the day, like Griswold Morris, the Sedgwicks, Grace Greenwood, Halleck, Hoffman, Mrs. Osgood,—“pleasant people mostly now forgotten,” Mr. Mabie writes, “but good company, and given to music, readings, and much mild gayety. Bryant was the foremost figure among them, and late in the century his Homeric head and lithe figure were to make old age contemporary with youth in the streets of New York.” Later into this world of letters came Stedman, Aldrich, Fitzjames, O'Brien, and the rest.

Before Frank Howard Dodd, a lad in his teens, entered his father's business that business had been moved from the Brick Church Chapel to 506 Broadway. Then the war came, first bringing great disturbance but later moving to a livelier activity. The sixties were long before the days of international copyright. In the absence of a law there grew up what was called “courtesy of the trade.” This was a tacit understanding between publishers that anyone announcing the book of an English author by advertisement in the New York Commercial had established a substantial claim to it (with which no one was to interfere). It had been customary to pay an honorarium to the writer of a successful English book, who, in turn, gave such authorization as he was able to the American publisher who had established direct relations with him and sent him advance sheets of his forthcoming books in order that he might be earlier in the market than the pirates. The tacit understanding assumed that if a book was successful the author would receive the customary remuneration. It was actually so disreputable to break over this courtesy that it was seldom violated. There were, of course, occasional complications, and when one publisher invaded what another regarded as his territory reprisals were considered to be perfectly legitimate. The publication of Froude's “Carlyle” started a curious controversy. The Scribners were the recognized American publishers of Froude; and the Harpers were the recognized American publishers of Carlyle. Each house felt itself entitled to the new book, one basing its claim upon the author and the other upon the subject.

Between the publishers and the American authors of those days the relations were like those existing between lawyer and client, or doctor and patient. No publisher would have considered approaching an author who had been discovered and published by another, with offers of better terms. If Dr. Holmes had visited New York and proposed to Mr. Appleton to publish his next book the chances are that he would have been asked, “Have you severed your relations with Ticknor & Fields?” If he said “No, but I hope to be offered better terms by you than they have been giving me,” he would have been told that it was impossible to make such an offer so long as his relations with his old publisher were friendly, and the probability is that Messrs. Ticknor & Fields would have received a letter from the Appletons telling them of the interview. Mr. Dodd has told the story of such an episode.

My father had published the writings of Mrs. Charles, an English woman, whose first book was the “Schonberg Cotta Family.” This and all of her books were immensely popular. He had sent her a handsome honorarium, and she had recognized him as her American publisher. It came to his ears that Mr. Scribner, who had started a magazine, which was afterwards merged into the Scribner Monthly, had asked her to write a story to be published serially in that magazine. My father sent a message to Mr. Scribner deprecating his interference with his author. Thereupon, as I remember very well, in came Mr. Scribner one morning with his letter book under his arm and said to my father, “I understand that you feel aggrieved that I have approached Mrs. Charles and I have called to read to you my letter to her.” Then he called me and asked me to hear it as well. In it he had asked her for the story, and he had said in the most emphatic way that he considered Mr. Dodd to be her authorized publisher, and that he of course would issue the book. All he desired was the serial publication which, as he thought, would help rather than hinder the sale of the book.

Have the old ideals passed away? Have the old courtesies become entirely a thing of the past? Mr. William Dean Howells has recorded an incident that bears upon that question, an incident that is associated with the subject of his Memory. It was in the dark days when financial disaster seemed to be threatening the Franklin Square Publishing house with which Mr. Howells had been so long connected. There seemed to be nothing to do but to seek a publisher elsewhere, so the novelist went to Frank H. Dodd with the first chapter of a story which became "The Kentons," and an offer of the book, an offer which was naturally at once accepted. But the skies brightened, and it was made clear to Mr. Howells that he might continue his relations with his old publishing house on the same pleasant and profitable basis. He went to Mr. Dodd, told him frankly where he stood, and asked for a release from the agreement. "In business, which the ignorant think altogether sordid," Mr. Howells has recorded, "many delicate and generous things are done, and I could never forget the terms of this eminent publisher's compliance with my suggestion, or the wish for my profit and pleasure in the renewal of my old relations with Franklin Square which he so cordially expressed."

Mr. Dodd's career bridged the years that saw the passing of the older generation of publishers and the rise of the new. In 1870 he succeeded his father in business and with Edward S. Mead formed the firm of Dodd and Mead. Their first marked success was "Barriers Burned Away." In the year 1871 E. P. Roe was pastor of a church at Highland Falls, near West Point, New York. At that time he had never written fiction, nor had he any definite promptings toward authorship. Early in October he was asked to preach in a church without a pastor in New York City with the understanding that he would consider a call if the congregation extended it. It was on the night of that Sunday that the burning of Chicago began. On Monday people in New York read the startling headlines in the morning papers. An impulse moved Mr. Roe to go at once to the stricken city. Out of that visit came "Barriers Burned Away." The fashioning of the story in his mind and the task of writing out the pages occupied almost two years. Serially the tale appeared in the New York Evangelist. In book form it made its first appearance toward the end of 1872, and was an instantaneous success. By the following March, Dodd and Mead had sold thirteen thousand copies of the book, astonishing figures for those days. Year in and year out the demand for "Barriers Burned Away" has gone on; it is still selling after more than forty years, and its total sale, in all editions, may be roughly estimated at not far from a million copies. "Barriers Burned Away" was the first of almost twenty novels by Mr. Roe, and his connection with his publisher was close until his death in 1888.

In 1876 Bleeker Van Wagenen joined the firm. In 1884 the partners decided on a step destined to be of great importance in the history of the house. They purchased an Americanized reprint of Chambers's well known encyclopædia and upon it builded the "International Cyclopædia" and later the "New International Encyclopædia." In Mr. Dodd's mind through these years had grown the idea of a great American encyclopædia modelled upon the lines of Brockhaus. Slowly and patiently he devoted his efforts to perfecting the "New International Encyclopædia" in such a way as to make it worthy to rank with its great European model. Able lieutenants in the building of the "New International" were the late Daniel Coit Gilman, of Johns Hopkins University, the late Harry Thurston Peck, and Professor Frank Moore Colby.

Mr. Dodd's activities as a publisher were not confined to this country. Few Americans have been so well liked in England. He was in the habit of visiting London every year or two and his circle of friends among British authors and publishers was a wide one. Sir William Robertson Nicoll, who wrote his "Recollections" of Mr. Dodd in the British Weekly for January twentieth last, recalled their first luncheon together, a lunch that was the beginning of what was to be a long and close friendship. It was at the National Liberal Club, and after the repast, they found a comfortable nook in the library. Sir William never forgot that day, and Mr. Dodd's talk of matters American, and his way of telling a story. Englishmen paid Mr. Dodd what they considered to be the highest form of compliment. They took him for an Englishman, which meant that they took him to their hearts. In association he had the best that literary London had to offer. He was thrown in intimate contact with the ripest literary scholarship. The talk he heard at London tables was the talk of such men as Maurice Hewlett and Austin Dobson amiably disputing over certain comparatively obscure poets of the age of Queen Anne. Miss Beatrice Harraden was always one of his and his family's closest friends. He brought out in America Ian Maclaren's vastly popular "Beside the Bonnie Briar Bush." Dr. Watson and Mr. Dodd were introduced to each other by Sir William (then Doctor) Robertson Nicoll. "The two grasped hands at once and were never parted," is the way Sir William has expressed it. When Ian Maclaren came to America on his first lecturing tour he achieved a success second only to that of Dickens. In this country Mr. Dodd was his constant guide, his philosopher and friend. It was the same on the second lecture tour, and on the third tour, brought to an abrupt conclusion by Dr. Watson's death. It was natural that in the shock of calamity Mrs. Watson's first thought was to reach out for that kindly hand that years before had grasped the hand of her husband and had never let go.

There were men beside Dr. Watson to whom that initial handclasp meant a tie that was to hold while life lasted. They were the men who in the various business enterprises in which he was interested looked to him as the leader; the men who were associated with him in work for social betterment; the men who came into intimate contact with him in the Century Club of New York which he loved so well. For among all the qualities of Frank Howard Dodd there was perhaps none more dominant than his genius for friendship. And the reason that he received so much was that he gave so much. He inspired loyalty in those about him because loyalty was the keynote of his own nature; because his lieutenants knew so absolutely that when his friendship and confidence were once given they would never lightly be recalled. Expediency sways many men. Expediency did not sway him; the breaking of an association meant too much of a heart wrench. Few men go through life so considerate of the feelings of others. The grave courtesy, the bright smile, the genial optimism, the depth of his sympathy in the hour of trouble, the sincerity of its expression, were born of the true politeness of the heart. The politeness of the heart. That sums it all up so well. The man to whom it was given, as it was so richly given to Frank Howard Dodd, commands through life the best of the affection and friendship that life has to give.

HUNTINGTON PAYS $115,000 FOR PART OF PEMBROKE LIBRARY

HENRY F. HUNTINGTON has purchased en bloc for $115,000 from George D. Smith the collection of illuminated manuscripts, block books, incunabula, and other rarities that were in the library of the Earl of Pembroke, and which Mr. Smith bought when the library was sold at Sotheby's in London. The origin of this historic library remains unknown. The great bibliographer, Thomas Frognall Dibdin, considered it to be one of the oldest private collections in existence. From the time of the third and fourth Earls of Pembroke, "the incomparable pair of brethren," to whom the First Folio Shakespeare was dedicated, the library had been continually enriched by additions applied by descendants.

Among the books was a copy of the extremely rare Dutch edition of the "Speculum Humanae Salustionis," known in Dutch as "Dot Speghel der Menscheliker Behoudenis." There are two other copies, both imperfect, in the City Library of Haarlem, in which city this wonderful specimen of xylography is said to have been produced by Laurenz Janson Koster. A copy, likewise imperfect, was in the Town Library of Lille, which has probably been destroyed by fire in the present war. No copy, perfect or imperfect, is in the British Museum, the Bodleian Library at Oxford, or in the National Library at Paris.

Another monument of the greatest typographical importance is the "collection" of Joannes Ballus, printed by Gutenberg, and of special interest as being the fourth book printed with a date, 1460. It was the first lexicon or dictionary ever published. There is also a fine copy of the first edition of the first Greek lexicon, printed at Milan in 1499 and compiled by Suidas.

The collection includes five books from the press of William Caxton, among them being the first work ever printed in the English tongue, known as the "Recuyell of the Histories of Troye." This was printed by Caxton at Bruges. Another volume is the "Game and Playe of the Chesse," being the second book printed by Caxton in England, and the second English book to appear with illustrations. The other Caxtons are Higden's "Polychronicon," 1482; Mick's "Festivall," 1490; and Cicero "On Old Age," 1487.

Of equal importance is the famous "Book of Saint Albans," printed by the "School Master Printer of St. Albans" in 1486. This is notable as being not only one of the rarest books in the English language, but also as being the earliest of the innumerable books on sport, the first English armorial and the first book to contain English popular rhymes.

Fine specimens of the early wood engraver's art are to be found in many of the volumes. There are splendid incunabula from the first presses of Strassburg, Cologne, Nuremburg, Ulm, Basel, Rome, Florence, Venice, Milan, Bologna, Ferrara, Verona, Paris, Lyons, Louvain, Bruges, Haarlem, Westminster, and London. As was the custom of the period, the margins, first pages, and initial spaces of the books have been beautifully illuminated and artistically painted and decorated by the foremost artists practicing in the different places named.

The number of rare and early French and Italian books is large. Among them is the only known vellum printed copy of Jehan Bouchet's "Lamoureux transy sans Espon," published by Anthoine Verard of Paris and richly decorated with twenty superb illuminated miniatures.

Magnificent specimens of the works of the fathers of the Church and other early Christian writers are represented, such as the first edition of the works of Saint Ambrose, printed at Basel in 1492, and the writings of Alexander de Alea, an English Franciscan monk and noted theologian, who died about 1250. There are rare editions of Thomas Aquinas and Thomas à Kempis; Saint Augustine from the first press at Venice; the famous "Epistles of Saint Cyprian," Bishop of Carthage, martyred about 258 A. D., and published for the first time by Sweynham and Pannartz, the first printers of Rome, and a vellum printed copy of Saint Jerome, printed in 1470, of Peter Schaeffer, partner of Gutenberg. Fine first editions of the most famous Greek and Latin classics are also numerous represented.

For many years Mr. Huntington has been the largest individual buyer of rare books in the world. Among the great libraries he has purchased en bloc are those of the Duke of Devonshire, E. Dwight Church, Beverley Chew, and Frederick W. Halsey. At the disposal of the Robert Hoe library he was the largest buyer. He has also obtained library treasures from the McKee, Poor, Daly, and Heckscher collections.

THE LATE FRANK H. DODD is quoted as having said: "I think we ought to publish every year twenty or thirty books of which we know in advance that they cannot possibly pay, but of which we feel sure that they will be a credit to our house."

FURTHER STIPULATIONS OF BRITISH GOVERNMENT REGARDING BOOKS FROM ENEMY COUNTRIES.

In addition to the requirements of the British Foreign Office regarding the importation of books from certain belligerent countries, which were printed in full in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY for December 18, 1915, we are advised by the Librarian of Congress of the following further requirements:

(1) In each application the precise number of volumes applied for, the value of each, and the total value is to be furnished.

(2) In all applications the name is to be given of the shipping agent at Rotterdam, by whom the shipment is to be forwarded.

(3) All applications are to be in quadruplicate instead of in triplicate.

The Librarian of Congress further advises us that, from applications returned for correction it would appear that only publications in German are intended to be covered.

POSTAL NOTES.

BILL WOULD AFFECT PERIODICALS.

SENATOR BANKHEAD, of Alabama, chairman of the Post Office Committee, on March 11 introduced and had referred to his committee a bill to repeal the law requiring editors, publishers, and owners of newspapers, magazines and periodicals, to file with the postmaster general every six months sworn statements of names of editors, owners, stockholders, securities, and, in the case of newspapers, sworn statements of average circulation. Senator Bankhead said he was acting on his own initiative in behalf of small country newspapers.

COPYRIGHT NOTES.

BILL BEFORE CONGRESS REDUCES PENALTY FOR INNOCENT INFRINGEMENT OF PRINT OR PICTORIAL ILLUSTRATION.

SENATOR BLAIR LEE, of Maryland, introduced into Congress on March 9 a bill (S. 4890) to amend section 25 (b) of the Copyright Act so as to lessen the penalty now inflicted upon newspapers for the innocent infringement of copyrighted prints or pictorial illustrations. The bill proposes to bring prints and pictorial illustrations under the same category with photographs, altering the latter half of subsection b under section 25 to read: "But in case of a newspaper reproduction of a copyrighted photograph, print, or pictorial design, such damages shall not exceed the sum of $250 nor be less than the sum of $50." Under section 40, Senator Lee's amendment would insert the provision, "That if only the minimum amount specified in this Act for damages shall be awarded, each party shall pay his own costs."

PROPOSED BILL WOULD EXTEND COPYRIGHT TO MANUFACTURING DESIGNS.

MR. MORRISON introduced into the House of Representatives on December 17 last, a bill (H. R. 6458) extending copyright protection to designs for manufactured products.

BRITISH ACT EXCEPTS "TRADE ADVERTISEMENTS" FROM REQUIREMENT OF DEPOSIT IN BRITISH MUSEUM.

FOLLOWING the act of Parliament of May 19, 1915, providing "that the Board of Trade may, on the application of the Trustees of the British Museum, make regulations excepting from the provisions of this subsection [1 of section 15] publications wholly or mainly in the nature of trade advertisements," etc., the British Board of Trade passed the following regulation on August 9, last: "There shall be excepted from the provisions of Section 15 (1) of the Copyright Act, 1911, whereby the publisher of any book published in the United Kingdom is required within one month after the publication to deliver, at his own expense, a copy of the book to the trustees of the British Museum, the following publications, viz.: Trade advertisements, trade cards, trade catalogues, trade circulars, trade coupons, trade designs, trade form, trade labels, trade leaflets, trade plans, trade posters, trade price lists, trade prospectuses, trade show cards, trade wrappers."

AMERICAN BOOKSELLERS' ASSOCIATION BOOSTING MEMBERSHIP PREPARATORY TO CHICAGO CONVENTION.

THE American Booksellers' Association is making an especial drive this spring to increase its membership in the hope of making the Chicago convention the best attended annual session in its history. To this end a leaflet, "Why I Should Become a Member of the American Booksellers' Association," is being sent to individual members of the trade throughout the country.

"The purpose of the American Booksellers' Association," this states, "is to arouse the booksellers and publishers of the country to a realization of the necessity for co-operation in the protection and promotion of their interests; and to point out how it is practical to obtain this co-operation."

Three reasons why every bookseller, retail or wholesale, department stores conducting a book department, as well as individual representatives of publishing houses, should join the Association are outlined by the leaflet as follows:

"First: As a token of appreciation to the men who have for sixteen years so unselfishly given of their time and money, to restore the retail book-trade to a sound and profitable basis. These men, many of whom have retired from active posts in the Association, and some even from the book business, would deem no appreciation so great as the increase of this Association, both in numerical and financial strength, to a point where it could more adequately deal with the conditions that confront the trade.

"Second: Because your membership and the membership of every bookman in this country is needed in order to make this Association strong enough—morally and financially—to undertake the great co-operative work that lies ahead of it.

"Third: The Association will bring to you strong ties of fellowship with other men, all over the country, who are doing the same work and facing the same difficulties as you are. By attending the Annual Convention, you will be put in touch with the newest ideas, and the most active leaders in the business. You will return from each Convention stimulated, and with a fund of new and profitable ideas that will many times over pay your dues in the Association, and your expenses to the Convention."

public spirited booksellers gathered in New York, about sixteen years ago, to discuss these problems, and find some way to improve conditions. Thus came about the formation of The American Booksellers' Association; and, for the last sixteen years, its officers and members, though in numbers but a small proportion of the entire book-trade of the country, have worked to improve conditions under which all who sell books might hope to conduct their business profitably.

The first efforts of the American Booksellers' Association resulted in many publishers making their serious books net, with such a limited discount that price-cutting was impractical, and about 1910 the net system was also extended to fiction. Other activities of the Association have included an investigation of cost keeping in retail bookstores, the formation of a Board of Trade the aim of which is to get into closer touch with the publishers, and the promotion of such legislation as the Stevens and Stephens bills.

Applications for membership in the Association should be sent to Eugene L. Herr, Lancaster, Pa. The dues are ten dollars annually, payable in advance.

Don't hope for the best, but hop for it.—Geyer's Stationer.

COMMUNICATIONS

PERIODICALS YIELD SURE PROFIT TO BOOKSELLERS—AN ANSWER TO W. K. STEWART.

Easton, Pa., March 23, 1916.

Editor the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY:

When I read in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY of March 11th, the article entitled "No Money in Periodicals for Booksellers," by W. K. Stewart, of Louisville, Indianapolis, and Cincinnati, I should have concluded from his statements (had I not been selling magazines for over thirty-five years) that that part of the business was unprofitable, and I should have immediately discontinued that department for the reasons stated, "There is no money in periodicals for the bookseller."

Mr. Stewart states that if one's sales of magazines is $10,000 yearly, any other class of merchandise would represent a stock investment of $2000, meaning of course that the $2000 worth of other merchandise would be turned five times yearly to make sales of $10,000 (a very liberal turn over). Adding interest on this stock investment, of $10.00 a month, to the profit of $10,000 worth of sales of magazines, and "we are still operating below the cost of handling the proposition."

That there is no difficulty in determining the cost of doing a book and stationery business (total cost I mean), is not questioned, but to determine the cost of doing a magazine business in a book and stationery store with stated overhead charges throughout would require more than a Taylor scientific argument.

It has been estimated at the several conventions of booksellers and stationers, including reports from those who do, and those who declare they do not, know, that it costs 28% to do business. I do not know what the W. K. Stewart estimate is but considering this the average, let us analyze the magazine business. Take up any list of magazines, giving the wholesale and retail prices in parallel columns, add these up page for page, on several pages, subtract the cost from the selling prices on any number of pages to get the percentage—divide this by 1% of the cost and on nearly every page you will find the average profit 33 1-3% (according to the school method). In some cities where popular copyrights are sold at forty-five cents, the business, buying at the maximum discount, shows the same profit on the same basis (although we are glad to see that Mr. Stewart does not approve of this cut price method). But, profits are not always determined on cost and selling price but on volume of business and quick turnovers, therefore it is only fair to give the magazine business a square deal, which I believe is Mr. Stewart's intention. The magazine business requires no investment of capital, and if based on the school method of 33 1-3% monthly or weekly, twelve to fifty-two times a year, is not to be thrown out without serious consideration. A few months ago the filing device makers increased their discount on cabinets to established agents from 25% to 33 1-3% from list prices. To represent a reputable concern it is necessary to purchase $1000 or more of cabinets on the above basis, and to maintain this amount at all times. Charge up interest and space required on this basis and see which is the more profitable.

As to subscription business: Mr. Stewart states that it does not pay to place an intelligent person in charge of the magazine counter, but that during the months of December and January they place one of the most competent people in the store to receive subscriptions for magazines, from which I infer that the subscription business on account of being larger in volume is more profitable, but if the dealer will take up his subscription list and figure the profit on the various combinations, he may decide for himself whether the retailing of magazines or the subscription business is the more profitable.

In the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY of March 4th, page 736, it is stated that Mrs. Jennie Stone Helm made more than $1,000,000 as a magazine agent, that she went to Lexington, Ky., twenty-five years ago, in the same state in which Mr. Stewart writes his article, and became a teacher in the public schools, that to increase her income she solicited subscriptions until she established the J. M. Hanson magazine business, a name she chose, and that she was once offered $100,000 for her subscription lists. Need any bookseller or stationer who reads the above article require a more convincing argument that the sale of magazines by subscription or over the counter is profitable?

Many articles of merchandise which do not appear to pay a profit above the established overhead charges are really paying a greater profit by reason of the multiplied profits on frequent sales and quick turnovers. If you sell mimeographs, you create a constant demand for supplies, and a filing cabinet with its 25% discount carries with it continuous profit on supplies at a discount to the dealer of 40% from list. A single mimeograph has been known to bring in sales of $800.00 worth of supplies yearly at regular intervals, and who can estimate the sales of supplies after selling the card index or filing cabinet.

The magazine customer, in nine cases out of ten, asks for his favorite magazine, and it does not require an overly intelligent person to accept cash and turn it over to the cashier. The proof of this statement can be seen on the street news stand sale.

Mr. Bookseller and Newsdealer, Everywhere, do all in your power to increase your sales of magazines. Keep your returns down to the minimum, don't hold the magazine business responsible for every loss in your business, but get your profit—a sure profit—and from these profitable magazine customers you will not only get their yearly subscriptions, but the additional profits from the sale of books advertised in each magazine, and for which the publishers are paying hundreds or dollars per month to help your sales.

As an advertisement can only bring the customer to your store, who could think of discontinuing the sale of magazines which brings to your establishment weekly and monthly, year in and out, thousands of the most intelligent people in your community, not only to purchase magazines, but other articles of merchandise as well.

E. D. VOGEL.

OBITUARY NOTES.

EDWARD MANNING SAUNDERS, D.D., whose death occurred at Ottawa, Canada, on March 15, was the author of several volumes of historical and biographical interest, particularly dealing with Nova Scotia and Nova Scotians. At the time of his death he had just completed a very extensive life of the late Sir Charles Tupper, Bart., former premier of Canada and one of the most distinguished sons of the eastern province of the Dominion. Dr. Saunders was born at Aylsford, N. S., December 20, 1829, and was educated for the ministry of the Baptist Church. He held charges for a number of years in Berwick and Halifax, N. S., but withdrew from the active ministry thirty years ago to become editor of the Christian Visitor, a religious paper, and to devote himself to other literary work. His books are, "The Life of the Rev. John Wiswall, M.A., an Episcopal United Empire Loyalist"; "The History of the Baptists of the Maritime Provinces"; "Three Premiers of Nova Scotia"; and "The Life of Sir Charles Tupper, Bart.", (on the press). Dr. Saunders was the father of Miss Marshall Saunders, author of "Beautiful Joe" and other stories of bird and animal life.

THE REV. STOFFORD AUGUSTUS BROOKE, former honorary chaplain to Queen Victoria, died on March 18, at Ewhurst, Surrey, England. Dr. Brooke was born in Ireland in 1832 and was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, where he distinguished himself by his scholarship and took several prizes. He was ordained in 1857, and from 1863 to 1865 was chaplain to the Princess Royal in Berlin. Publications: "Life and Letters of the late Frederick W. Robertson," 1865; "Freedom in the Church of England," 1871; "Sermons," 1868-77; "Theology in the English Poets," 1874; "Primer of English Literature," 1876; "A Fight of Faith," 1877; "Riquet of the Tuft, a Love Drama," 1880; "Spirit of the Christian Life," 1881; "Unity of God and

WILLIAM ANGUS KNIGHT, known to Wordsworth lovers everywhere, died at his home in Keswick, England, on March 4. He was born in Scotland eighty years ago, and received his education in the High School and the University of Edinburgh. For more than a quarter-century (1876-1902) he occupied the chair of moral philosophy in the University of St. Andrews. His literary labors, original and editorial, have resulted in a long list of publications, beginning in 1863 and continuing almost to the present time. An important edition of Wordsworth, including a life of the poet, appeared under his sponsorship in 1881-9; and later he edited the well-known "Eversley Edition" of William and Dorothy Wordsworth's complete writings. Eight volumes of the "Transactions of the Wordsworth Society," published 1880-86, bear his name as editor. His many publications include: Selections from Wordsworth, 1889; The White Doe of Rylstone, edited 1891; Wordsworth's Prose, 1893; Stories and Rhymes of Golf, 1893; (Edited) University Extension Manuals, 25 vols., 1891-99; The Philosophy of the Beautiful; Its History, 1891; Its Theory, 1893; Aspects of Theism, 1894; The Christian Ethic, 1894; The English Lake District, as Interpreted in the Poems of Wordsworth, 1878-91; Through the Wordsworth Country, 1892; Wordsworthiana, 1889; edited Rectorial Addresses delivered at the University of St. Andrews, 1894; The Literature of the Georgian Era, by Prof. Minto, edited with Biographical Introduction, 1894; Memoir of John Nichol, Professor of English Literature in Glasgow University, 1895; The Works of William Wordsworth and Dorothy Wordsworth, 2 vols., 1896-97; Retrospects, 1903; Reciprocity in Trade, the Empire's Safeguard, 1903; The Poems of Coleridge, edited; Biographical Sketch of Sir Thomas Thornton, 1905; Prayers, Ancient and Modern, 1905; Letters of the Wordsworth Family, 1907.

PERSONAL NOTES.

OGDEN T. MCCLURG, who was married in Boston, March 6, is on a honeymoon trip in the West Indies. On account of his absence, he desired to be relieved from his duties as chairman of the committee in charge of this year's convention of the American Booksellers' Association, Mr. F. K. Reilly taking his place as chairman. Mr. Jos. E. Bray, of McClurg's, was added to the committee, which, we might add, we know to be hard at work.

RALPH W. LEONARD is the new head of the book and stationery departments of Abraham & Straus, succeeding George Massie, resigned. Mr. Leonard won his spurs as buyer of stationery, books and kindred lines for Miller & Rhoads, of Richmond, Va. His work attracted the attention of the heads of the Syndicate Trading Co., who secured Mr. Leonard to take control of their buying for the Gimbel book department in New York City, a position he resigned later to accept the leadership of the John Wanamaker stationery department.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

"POLLYANNA" is now in its three hundred and fortieth thousand and "Pollyanna Grows Up" is in its one hundred and seventieth thousand.

JOHN MARSHALL, formerly of Gomme & Marshall, has gone into publishing for himself. He will issue shortly a volume of verse and a new play by Alfred Kreymborg.

PRESIDENT WILSON as essayist proved so popular in "When a Man Comes to Himself" that Harper & Brothers will issue on April 6 another little volume by him "On Being Human."

"THE IVORY CHILD," a romance of mysterious Arabs, strange rites, disappearances and desperate hand to hand fighting, all told in Sir Rider Haggard's most spine-chilling style, is to be published next Wednesday by Longmans, Green & Co.

REPRESENTATIVE IRA C. COPLEY, of Illinois, on March 27 introduced in the House a resolution calling on the Secretary of Commerce to furnish information regarding the scarcity of print paper and the matter entering into its manufacture. It was referred to the Committee on Rules.

THE GENERAL MANAGER of all the Child's Restaurants—a title positively imperial in its implication of power—has placed the seal of his approval upon H. T. Finck's gastronomic guide to good and joyful living, "Food and Flavor," by distributing copies among the managers of the New York restaurants.

Boys' Life, the Boy Scout magazine, has inaugurated an interesting juvenile book-reviewing department in which "Billy Bookworm" gives the fellows a "hunch" on some of the good boys' books he has read recently. Franklin K. Matthews, Chief Scout Librarian, is, we understand, in charge of the department.

J. S. METCALF, dramatic critic of Life, has brought suit for $10,000 against the Billboard, a New York theatrical magazine, alleging that both his feelings and dignity of his calling had been injured by an article published last June. The question involved is said to be whether dramatic criticism is a fine art, or only a means of livelihood.

DEWITT & SNELLING, the Oakland, Cal., booksellers, are issuing in the form of a card index on standard size cards a catalog or bibliography of the printed books on California and the West in general. The cards are published in sets of ten at the rate of two sets a month. The books selected are of a general character, including both new and out of print titles.

MRS. PIERCE, young, attractive, ardent, happily married, determines to elevate her husband financially and socially and finds that business, in which she plays no part, has a vital effect upon the most important things of her life—herein lies the interest of Cameron MacKenzie's "Mr. and Mrs. Pierce," a story of big city life to appear April 15. Of this new book—a first novel, by the way—Dodd, Mead & Co. say, "Cameron MacKenzie was editor of McClure's Magazine for several years and knows a good story as well as anybody—he says this is a good one!"

ANNA STEESE RICHARDSON'S "Adventures in Thrift" (Bobbs-Merrill Co.) is the story, in fiction form, of a real woman who undertook to find out how to keep house economically, how to live on a third less, how to get her money's worth. She tested all the modern methods of reducing the high cost of living, discovered and weighed the pros and cons of buying from the grocer, at the municipal market, and direct by parcel post. She looked into the work of the National Housewives' League of co-operative buying clubs, co-operative stores, and communal kitchens, and finally she solved her problem.

CLEVELAND MOFFETT'S "The Conquest of America" furnishes booksellers in a strip one hundred and fifty miles from the seaboard inland running from Boston to Richmond with a ready-made selling point, because practically all of the important cities and towns in this area are mentioned in the book. Mr. Moffett has studied the topography of Long Island and other parts of the East carefully in the preparation of his "romance of invasion" and the book gives a vivid picture of what is to be expected in 1921 when Von Kluck lands his invading army at Easthampton, Long Island. The Geo. H. Doran Co. will publish "The Conquest of America" on April 8.

"BARS OF IRON" by Ethel M. Dell, which the Putnams are to publish April 15, is the story of a man who, goaded, against his will, into a fight, kills his opponent. Years later, all unknowing of her identity, he falls in love with the widow of the man he has killed and kindles in her a friendship that has latent in it the promise of a stronger feeling. At that stage, he learns by chance the awful part that he had played in her life, and the story is the story of his conduct under the trying conditions of this discovery, of the resolution he formed, the promise he made, and the way his actions, dictated by fear and affection, influenced the woman he loved.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. publish to-day "The Master Detective" by Percy James Brebner, author of the Christopher Quarles stories. On April 7 will appear "Thinking as a Science," a little book by Henry Hazlitt for the man who wants to learn to think more clearly; "Passed by the Censor," the story of the New York Times correspondent, Wythe Williams, with a military map showing the whole line of the German trenches from Belgium to the Swiss border; "The New Golf" by P. A. Vaile; and "A Book for Shakespeare Plays and Pageants" by Miss O. L. Hatcher, a treasury of Elizabethan and Shakespearean detail for producers, actors artists and students, illustrated with two hundred portraits and pictures.

LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD Co. have changed their spring publication date from April 1 to April 15, on which day the following books will appear: "Our Mothers," compiled by Mary A. Ayer, "Truly Stories from the Surely Bible," adapted by Margaret Howard, "The Monster-Hunters" by Francis Rolt-Wheeler, "Midshipman Stanford" by H. H. Clark, "When I Was a Boy in Russia" by Vladimir Mokrievitch, "That's Why Stories" by Ruth O. Dyer, "The Red House Children Growing Up," the fifth volume in the Little Red House Series by Amanda M. Douglas, "Girls of Morning-Glory Camp Fire" by Isabel Hornibrook, a new edition of "The Lance of Kanana" by Harry W. French, and new popular editions of the Dave Porter Series and Helen Grant Books.

WHEN JOSEPH H. BUNDERCOMBE, a wealthy American, came to England with his daughter Eve, he was not content to be an ordinary tourist. An inveterate reader of detective stories, he found amusement instead in going about under an assumed name, making use of disguises, consorting with criminals, and getting himself watched by Scotland Yard. And wherever Mr. Bundercombe went something was sure to happen; jewels disappeared, money was stolen, or there was cheating at cards. He was assisted in his exploits by his daughter and a young Englishman of excellent family who did not at all approve of Mr. Bundercombe's conduct, but was led to assist because he had fallen in love with Eve. The many narrow escapes of this trio make up the story of E. Phillips Oppenheim's newest creation, "An Amiable Charlatan," which will be published by Little, Brown & Co., on April 8.

FROM WHOLESALE GROCER to writer of fiction that sells three editions in advance of publication is a long jump—even for an American! But such has been the career of Frank H. Spearman, author of "Whispering Smith" and of "Nan of Music Mountain," which Charles Scribner's Sons will publish April 8. Mr. Spearman was born in New York and raised in Wisconsin. He went to Lawrence University at Appleton, Wisconsin, but his delicate health prevented him from graduating and he was obliged to abandon all hope of the physician's career he had hoped for. So he became a wholesale grocer in Chicago. In 1884 he married the daughter of a pioneer merchant and capitalist, and two years later engaged in banking in Western Nebraska. But his leisure hours were devoted to writing, and shortly he became so successful in this work that he gave up his whole time to

it. Mr. Spearman is now living in Los Angeles.

IN THE PREFACE to "England and Germany," an historical study of Anglo-German relations since 1740, which will be published by the Princeton University Press on April 15, the Author, Bernadotte Everly Schmitt, says: "The Anglo-German problem first came under my notice some years ago, when I was an undergraduate at Oxford. A beneficiary of the Rhodes Trust, I was imbued with the idea of Anglo-Saxon solidarity, to promote which Cecil Rhodes founded the scholarships which bear his name. But, instead of harmony, I found discord. Some of my Oxford friends were members of the British Navy League, and from them I learned that the German navy was regarded as a menace to England's traditional supremacy of the seas. When I travelled in Germany I encountered considerable animosity to England in several places, and I saw little banks in the shape of war ships, which tempted patriotic Germans to make contributions for the propaganda of the German Navy League. In time, as I studied the problem, I collected a quantity of material from different sources and of varying value; this book is the result."

AT LAST SHAKESPEARE AND BACON are to meet in a fight to a finish, Marquis of Queensberry rules, for the title of Champion Playwright of England. The backers are William N. Selig, of Chicago, for Mr. Shakespeare, Col. George Fabyan, of Chicago, for Mr. Bacon. The fight will be staged in Chicago. Upon the outcome of the bout depends whether in the law's opinion Shakespeare is to be branded as a "literary faker" and driven from the memories of the world and Lord Bacon lifted to the lofty pedestal of fame in his stead. Selig has prepared films for the tercentenary of the death of Shakespeare. He says the defendants are contemplating the publication of a series of works which will attribute Shakespeare's play to Lord Bacon. He asks that the publication be restrained, "or the fame of Shakespeare will be shattered." In granting a temporary injunction restraining Col. Fabyan from "defaming" the name of William Shakespeare, Judge Tuthill said: "For a long time I have wondered whether Bacon really was the author of the works credited to Shakespeare. It should be legally settled, for our school children are taught to revere him and his works, his birthday is celebrated the world over, and we pay homage to him. It is time that the question is legally settled. I will issue a temporary restraining order." The wealth of both Col. Fabyan and Mr. Selig are said to have been pledged to fight the case to a finish. Each says the United States Supreme Court will be asked to pass finally upon the mooted question. At the same time, there is a bit of gentle irony in the sale at Walpole Galleries in New York on the same day on which this injunction was granted of the first book on the Bacon-Shakespeare controversy. $1825 was paid for the book, "The Life and Adventures of Common Sense: an Historical Allegory," 1769, the accredited author being Herbert Lawrence.

BUSINESS NOTES.

CENTRALIA, CAL.—Mrs. C. S. Barron, bookseller, has made an assignment.

CHAMBERSBURG, PA.—The firm of Stouffer & Mahon, stationers and booksellers, South Main street, has been dissolved and the business in the future will be conducted by Frank Stouffer, the senior member of the former firm. Mr. Stouffer has purchased the entire interest of his partner, Charles Mahon, and has changed the name of the business to that of Stouffer's Book Store. The old location will be retained. Since the organization of the firm of Stouffer & Mahon, about a year ago, Mr. Stouffer has had practically complete charge of the business.

ELKHART, IND.—Howard Knevels has moved his book store from 121 South Main street to 114 South Main street. He was in the old location for fifteen years.

FAYETTE, MO.—Alsop & Brodhurst are reported to have succeeded Brodhurst & Smith, booksellers, newsdealers and stationers.

HARTFORD, CONN.—A. Lincoln Chase is reported to have succeeded Mrs. E. M. Sill, bookseller, newsdealer and stationer.

NEW YORK CITY.—A new bookshop will shortly be opened at Fifth Ave. and 33rd St. by Mrs. Mowbray Clark.

SAN DIEGO, CAL.—H. E. Lutz has opened a stationery and book store here.

WICHITA, KAN.—The Orr Book & Stationery Co. has remodeled the three-story building at 323 East Douglas avenue and will occupy the new property at once. The improvements will consist of a new and modern front and an elevator for freight purposes. Stock will occupy two floors possibly all three of the new store building. Mr. Orr has been at his present location twelve years.

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTES.

KARSLAKE & Co., of 35 Pond St., Hampstead, London, N. W., have just issued volume XII of "Book Auction Records." The new volume is a priced and annotated record of London, Dublin, Edinburgh, Glasgow and American auctions; it includes 15,250 records of sales during the auction season 1914-15 and is larger by 162 records than was volume XI. The records for each quarter of the year are alphabetized separately, though the whole is united in one index. The volume also included articles on "Sion College Library, London," "Bertram Dobell," "A Few Notes upon some Rare Cruikshankiana," "Bolton Authors and Bolton Books," and "The Bibliography of Blackburn."

She had always wanted European culture for herself and her exquisite daughter—a girl of fire and dew—and when she became rich, Mrs. Bradish darted over to Europe. And she stayed! She put into the acquirement of suave manner, quiet speech, irreproachable acquaintance, all her Yankee energy. Even duchesses didn't despise a share in her dollars, and they chaperoned her, and found their cold old hearts warming to the charming girl. So began Sylvia's conquests and inspections of bona-fide Bourbon titles, ending in an unexpected choice.

o Sullivan, Fs., tighe. The portion of a champion. N. Y., Scribner. c. 6+368 p. D $1.35 n.

Of the heroic age in Ireland and how Conal, a chieftain's son, wrung from adverse fortune both recognition as a champion of warriors and the hand of the beautiful Etain. Chiefly he accomplished this in the course of the march of the Irish army under King Dathi, accompanied by his queen and her maids of honor, of whom was Etain, through Gaul and into Italy, a march often broken by battles with Gauls, Huns, and Romans. All this, as well as the life in Ireland, are vividly presented in a panorama of Celtic times.

Parker, R: Under fire; based on the drama of Roi Cooper Megrue. N. Y., Macaulay Co. c. 317 p. il. pls. D $1.25 n.

European War story which tells of Larry Redmond, an Irish soldier of fortune, and of Ethel Willoughby, whom he despaired of marrying. He returns from the East and finds that she has made a secret marriage with a man whom she knew little about. This Streetman is a German spy. When the war begins, Ethel works for England against her husband, who has deceived her. By an exciting turn, Redmond rescues Ethel from death as a spy, and is in at Streetman's. By another turn, Redmond and Ethel are separated, but after further adventure are united happily.

Watts, Mary Stanbery. The rudder; a novel with several heroes. N. Y., Macmillan. c. 453 p. front. D $1.50 n.

"Come what may, I will hold the rudder true," quoted Cook, the novelist, one of the heroes who is the uncle of the heroine, Eleanor. The story is of an unfortunate marriage between this girl of charm and mentality and a self-satisfied rich man's son, who goes into professional baseball, having nothing of the ability that made his father what he is. Eleanor did not marry for money, however, but because she was bewitched by the creature. She makes a real life out of what she has on her hands, always remembering the idea of the rudder, laying a course and sticking to it. The outlook at the close indicates a sequel.

Wilson, D: Alex., and others. Manual normal, para uso de los maestros y aspirantes de la escuela dominical y de las clases biblicas en los colegios; aprobado por la Asociación nacional de escuelas dominicales, de Cuba. N. Y., Sociedad Americana de Tratados. c. 7+246 p. 12° $1

Wolf, Emma. Fulfillment; a California novel. N. Y., Holt. c. 397 p. D $1.35 n.

Emotional story, of which love is the force, whether it be that of the sisters, the reckless passion of the radical dramatist, the devotion of the husband, or his mother's love. Two sisters live in a little cottage on the heights of San Francisco. Gwen Heath, beautiful and impatient of restraint, slips from a hectic love affair into an impetuous marriage, and into a situation which seems to offer no alternative but divorce or unhappiness. Her growth, through experience, is the main theme.

Wyllarde, Dolf. Exile; an outpost of empire. N. Y., J: Lane. 364 p. D $1.35 n.

A little group of Britishers at an outpost in the Orient include Hervey, a government engineer, and Claudia Everard, wife of the chief justice. Hervey, who has been the idol of many, detests Claudia for her aloofness, and rejoices when her happiness is thrust into his hands. Claudia's husband has disclosed his nefarious schemes to Hervey before he realizes Hervey is not his sort. As he knows Claudia's power, he then tells her to offer Hervey anything for the return of the letter. In the tragedy that develops, the populace take over the avenging of Everard's wickedness, and Claudia and Hervey change their ideas of each other.

Younghusband, Sir Fs. E: Mutual influence. N. Y., Duffield. '15 144 p. 12° $1.25 n.

Advertising copy should reach us Tuesday noon—earlier if proof is desired out-of-town. Forms close Thursday night.

Under the heading "BOOKS WANTED" book-trade subscribers, under their own names, are given five nonpareil lines (exclusive of address) free advertisement for specified books, not more than one title to the line, in any issue except special numbers, but not exceeding 100 lines a year. If over five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line. Unspecified wants, reprinted matter, and all advertisements from non-subscribers, cost 10 cents a line. Objectionable books are excluded so far as they are noted.

In answering, please state edition, condition and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that will deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis should put [Cash] after their firm name. The appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the WEEKLY does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it endeavors to safeguard its columns by withholding the privileges of advertising should occasion arise, booksellers should take usual precautions in extending credit.

"Books Wanted" must be designated by actual title, not by "any."

Write your wants plainly, on one side of the sheet only. Illegible "wants" are ignored. The WEEKLY is not responsible for errors. Parties with whom there is no account must pay in advance.

Under "BOOKS FOR SALE" or for other small undisplayed advertisements, the charge is 10 cents a nonpareil line. No reduction for repeated matter. Count seven words to the line.

Reference List of New Publications

Recorded in MARCH, 1916

This Reference List enters the books recorded during the month under (1) author, in Clarendon type, anonymous books having Clarendon type for the first word; (2) title in Roman; (3) subject-heading in SMALL CAPS; (4) name of series in Italics.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

For books received sizes are given in CAPS, Q, O, D, etc., books not received sizes are given in Roman numerals, 4°, 8°, 12°, etc. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request. Where not specified the binding is cloth.

Those desiring to learn the entire publishing output of the month in any one field should look under one of the following MAIN HEADINGS:

PHILOSOPHY	MEDICINE	LITERATURE
RELIGION AND THEOLOGY	AGRICULTURE	POETRY
SOCIOLOGY	HOUSEHOLD ECONOMICS	DRAMA
LAW	BUSINESS	FICTION
EDUCATION	ENGINEERING, TECHNOLOGY	BIOGRAPHY
PHILOLOGY	FINE ARTS	GEOGRAPHY AND TRAVEL
SCIENCE	GAMES, SPORTS, AMUSEMENTS	HISTORY

Besides the titles listed under each of these headings cross reference is made from each to a limited number of cognate headings which collectively give all the new publications of the month in the given subject or group of subjects.

Inquirers looking for books on a specific topic should look under the general subject to which that topic belongs, i.e. GEOLOGY rather than SILURIAN PERIOD; MATHEMATICS rather than CALCULUS; ECONOMICS rather than WAGES. Books regarding specific Religious denominations, countries and persons, however, should still be sought for under their individual names.

THIS IS THE AGE OF THE SPECIALIST

In order to turn a manuscript into an attractive book, correct typographically, with appropriate paper, proper margins and appropriate binding, the services of the specialist in the manufacture of books are required.

The results secured from over fifteen years engaged exclusively in the manufacture of books convince us that it pays to specialize.
